

Hope College National Day on Writing October 20

Celebrate by submitting to our writing competitions:

The One Page

This competition is all about writing effectively in one page (double-spaced) or less. The categories span the disciplines we have here at Hope, so there's something for everyone. Submit your one-pagers to writing@hope.edu. Make sure the subject line is the category for your submission.

Example:

To: writing@hope.edu

From: Soc.Student@hope.edu

Subject: Best Social Sciences Abstract / Worst College Essay

“Best of” Categories:

- Social Sciences Abstract
- Lab Report Conclusion
- Experiment Design (social or natural)
- Arts and Humanities Paper Intro Paragraph
- General Essay
- Short Short Story
- Short Poem

“Worst of” Categories:

- Short Short Story
- College Essay
- Short Poem

The Tweet

This competition is all about concise writing that gets the job done in a creative way. Respond to the categories by tweeting @HopeWriting. Your submission must be made in just one tweet (no carry-over tweets). You can tweet any of the following categories, which span the disciplines we have here at Hope. Hashtag your tweets with the category name (as indicated below). Your tweets can begin any time, and keep on tweeting until Sunday, October 20th at 11:59pm. Winners will be announced at a separate event later in the week.

Example:

@HopeWriting, writing is what happens when you let your fingers do the thinking! #writing

Categories:

- What is writing? #writing
- Social Sciences Abstract #ssa
- Lab Report Conclusion #lrc
- Experiment Design (social or natural) #ed
- Arts and Humanities Paper Intro Paragraph #ahi
- General Essay #ge
- Short Short Story #sst

Submissions for these categories are not limited to particular majors or disciplines. You may submit to any category, as long as it fits the title and is one page double-spaced or less.

“Best of” and “Worst of” submissions must be received by 11:59 pm on Friday, October 18th.
Tweets must be posted by 11:59 pm on Saturday, October 20th.

Celebrate by attending the party:

Sunday, October 20 at 1:00 pm in the library's main lobby.

We'll have a reading from all of the “Best of” and “Worst of” winners (who will receive prizes!) followed by a reception with snacks and beverages.
